A querela entre CPI e CPMI é um dos pontos mais controversos no mundo da finanças, economia. Embora ambos sejam indicadores importantes para uma avaliação de inflação existem diferenças significativas entre as duas séries de moedas estrangeiras.

O que é CPI?

O CPI (Consumer Price Index) é um indicador que mede a inflação, como alimentos e bebidas alcoólicas. Ele analisa as alterações nos preços de produtos definidos por uso cotidiano.

- Bebidas-alimentos / Alimentos / combustíveis superiores

O que é CPMI?

O CPMI (Índice de Custos da Produção) é um indicador que mede a inflação de entrada do ponto de vista dos produtores.

Ele analisa as alterações nos custos, incluindo os preços das matérias-primas e serviços financeiros fora do país.
