&lt;p>A "farmer's tan" (also called golfer's tan) is a type of tan that is caused by exposure to ultraviolet radiation from the sun. It is characterized by a darkening of the skin on the face, neck, and arms, which are the areas most exposed to the sun. This type of tan is often associated with people who spend a lot of time outdoors, such as farmers and golfers. It is also known as a "farmer's tan" because it is often seen on the faces of farmers who work outdoors in the sun. The tan is caused by the production of melanin in the skin in response to the UV radiation. Melanin is a pigment that gives the skin its color and helps to protect it from the harmful effects of the sun. The tan is usually temporary and fades away over time, but it can be a sign of skin damage if it is not protected. It is important to use sunscreen and wear protective clothing to prevent skin damage from the sun. Tj T* BT /
